YEAR HAS BEEN SUCCESSFUL

W. H. Walkenhorn, Graduate of Lutheran College at Chicago, Selected as New Teacher.

Twenty-four pupils, thirteen girls and eleven boys, will be graduated from the local German Lutheran school at the annual commencement exercises Tuesday night. This is one of the largest classes ever graduated from that school. All but thirteen of the class that was recently confirmed in the church are members of the eighth grade class.

The members of the class are: Albert Alberring, Edward Hoeferkamp, Alwin Lange, Lawrence Morgan, Walter Pardieck, Harry Peters, Lawrence Schepman, Anton Miller, Clarence Steinwedel, Willard Steiner, Bertie Ulm, Wilna Acker, Thelma Alberring, Gaynell Breitfeld, Dorothy Huber, Irene Heideman, Luella Mascher, Leona McCann, Esther Otting, Carrie Otte, Edna Roder, Alma Schulte, Laura Taskay and Mabel Wornholt.

The school year just closing has been one of the most successful in the history of the German Lutheran schools. The total enrollment during the year was 198 and school has been conducted on 191 days. The average attendance for the year has been very high and few pupils have been absent on account of illness. Rapid progress with school work has been made in all the classes and the course mapped out for the year was completed several weeks ago. Of the graduates several intend to pursue their studies in the church schools and others will enter the local high school.

Because of the increasing attendance at the Lutheran school it has been necessary to add another teacher for next year. The Rev. E. H. Eggers, pastor of the church, has received word that W. H. Walkenhorn, a graduate from the Lutheran College at Chicago, has been selected to come here and will begin his duties at the opening of the fall term. He will teach the first and second grades. A. Wilde will have the third and fourth grades, George Twemeyer will have the fifth and sixth grades and Principal Lange will teach the seventh and eighth.

The annual school picnic will be held at the Shields Park on Thursday of next week. This is one of the most important events in connection with the commencement exercises. The Seymour Concert Band will furnish the music. The picnic will be in session both afternoon and evening.

CHILDREN'S DAY IN SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Special Exercises for the Young People to Feature Services in Many Churches Tomorrow.

CHILDREN TO GIVE PROGRAMS

Music, Flowers and Special Offerings to Mark Annual Observance of The Day.

Tomorrow is Children's Day in most of the Sunday Schools of the city, and special programs have been arranged for the occasion. Of course, every day is children's day in Sunday School, but one Sunday each year is especially set aside and dedicated to the little folks. Special music and decorations of flowers will mark the exercises in the various churches tomorrow, and large attendances are expected.

At the Baptist and Presbyterian churches the Children's Day exercises will be combined with the usual morning service at 10:30. At the St. Paul and Christian churches the exercises will be held at 7:30 p. m., the hour for the regular evening service. The First Methodist Sunday School will hold its exercises at the regular Sunday School hour, 9:30 a. m., while the German Methodist exercises will not be held until next Sunday.

The programs will, for the most part, be carried out by the children themselves, with short addresses appropriate to the occasion by the pastors.

In some of the schools special offerings will be taken for Sunday School missionary work.

MORTGAGE FOR $63,250.00 FILED IN JACKSON COUNTY

Given by Baltimore & Ohio Company to Secure Bond Issue—Document Contains 68,850 Words.

What is probably the biggest mortgage ever filed in Jackson county has been made a matter of record in the office of Simeon L. Henderson, county recorder. It was filed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company and covers a loan for $63,250,000. The mortgage was filed by Judge John M. Lewis, local legal representative of the company. Copies were filed in every county through which the B. & O. system is operated.

The mortgage came in the shape of a large booklet containing 133 pages. It required 68,850 words to describe the property mortgaged for the loan. The fee for recording the mortgage was $69.50.

The mortgage is made to the Central Trust company of New York, to secure a bond issue, and covers the main line and all of the branches of the railway company, twenty-nine roads in all.

Statesman and Jurist Named Republican Standard Bearer

TEDDY IS NAMED BY ACCLAMATION

Governor Hiram Johnson, of California, Insists Upon Nomination of Theodore Roosevelt.

PERKINS FOR A COMPROMISE

Progressive Leaders Dissatisfied With Proposed Selection of Henry Cabot Lodge.

BULLETIN.
By United Press.

Chicago, June 10—Colonel Roosevelt was expected to send a message to the Progressive Convention today.

(By H. L. Rennick, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Auditorium, Chicago, June 10—

Theodore Roosevelt was nominated as Progressive candidate for president of the United States by acclamation at the Progressive national convention at 12:33 o'clock this afternoon.

Roosevelt's nomination came in the face of the colonel's own recommendation that the Progressives and Republicans unite on Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. Bedlam broke loose in the auditorium as Chairman Robins suspended the rules, made the nomination by acclamation and announced the result all within a minute.

To the very last instance George W. Perkins fought for a compromise.

Governor Hiram Johnson, of California, who probably will be the Progressive vice presidential candidate, seconded the colonel's nomination after Bainbridge Colby of New Jersey, had made the nominating speech.

Anxious to nominate before the Republicans had nominated Hughes, Governor Johnson and Colby spoke but a few minutes. They were joking about awaiting word from the Republican convention so they did not nominate until 12:33, two minutes after Hughes was nominated.

by the Republicans in the Coliseum. In his seconding speech Governor Johnson said:

"There comes a time in every man's life when he goes up against the guns. You are up against the guns now. Don't wait another minute.

"In seconding this nomination, I will tell you that I don't know what Roosevelt will do but I do know he never shirked a responsibility in his life.

"You have performed the act you came to do," declared James A. Garfield as the nomination was announced.

"Now I move we sing one verse of America and recess until 3 o'clock."

Garfield's motion was put by the chairman and was carried.

Medill McCormick, of Illinois, long a staunch Roosevelt man, announced he would support Hughes.

Roosevelt lost control of the Bull Moose convention. In a long statement he asked the Progressives to compromise on Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts. This motion was tabled and the delegates proceeded towards the nomination of the colonel.

Progressive leaders expressed great dissatisfaction with Lodge, Gifford Pinchot and Governor Johnson were among the most violent critics of the colonel's compromise choice.

The conference committee reported it had agreed with the Republicans that the name of Justice Hughes should go before the Progressive convention. The Progressive platform was adopted.

Roosevelt's message to the Progressives which was lengthy first made a plea that past differences be forgotten and that a common ground be found.

"In view of the existing condition," he said, "I suggest the name of Henry C. Lodge, of Massachusetts. He is a man of highest integrity and broadest national spirit.

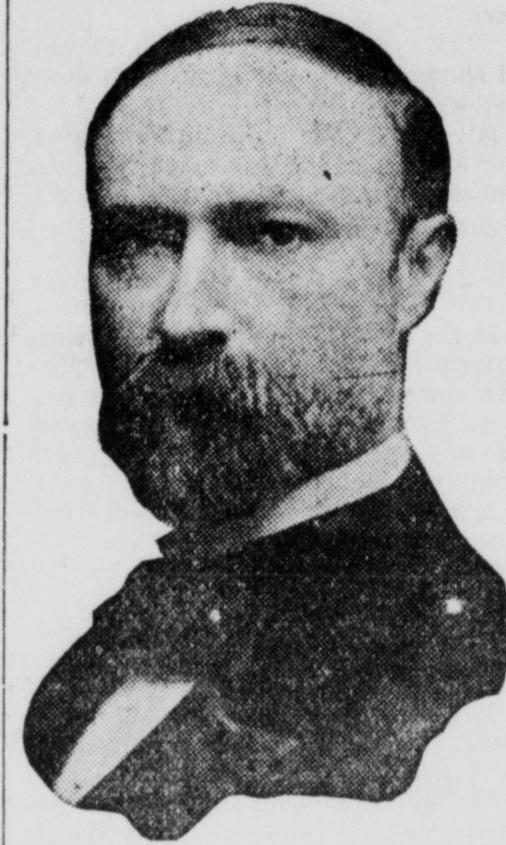

He has a close knowledge of our naval affairs and understands and supports preparedness in upbuilding the navy and army and the protection of the Panama canal. He has stood for Progressive legislation like the pure food law, the labor law and other laws."

Sentiment for Firm Protective, Upbuilding Policies, Essential to Peace and Security.

Washington, June 10, (3:30 p. m.)—Supreme Court Justice Hughes this afternoon sent his resignation to President Wilson. It follows:

"To the President:

"I hereby resign the office of associate justice of the supreme court of the United States.

"I am, sir,

"Respectfully Yours,
Charles Evans Hughes."

President Wilson accepted Justice Hughes' resignation at 4:10 this afternoon.

By United Press.

Washington, June 10—Justice Hughes in a statement made after he resigned from the supreme bench said he would accept the Republican nomination for president and that he endorsed the Republican platform.

"I have not desired the nomination," said Hughes. "I have wished to remain on the bench, but in this critical period of our national history I recognize that it is your right to summon and that is my paramount duty to respond."

You speak at a time of national exigency transcending merely partisan consideration. You voice the demand for a dominant thorough going Americanism with firm protective upbuilding policies, essential to your peace and security and to that call in this crisis I cannot fail to answer with the pledge of all that is in the service of our country.

"Therefore, I accept the nomination."

Indianapolis, June 10—Fairbanks told the United Press this afternoon he had not yet made up his mind on what action he might take, but would decide today.

By United Press.

Coliseum, Chicago, June 10—Charles Evans Hughes was chosen the Republican standard bearer by the Republican national convention today. His vote was 94½ out of a possible 98 ballots. Col. Roosevelt, his nearest competitor for the honor polled only 18½ votes. The nomination came on the third ballot of the convention and the first taken at today's session.

Hughes' nomination was made unanimous by Alexander Moore and Henry C. Lodge. Illinois was the first of the states to withdraw her "favorite son" in Hughes' interest. The others clamed aboard the band wagon in a regular scramble as soon as the convention met.

Charles Warren Fairbanks, of Indiana, was this afternoon nominated on the first ballot by the Republican convention as the party's candidate for vice president.

The vote was:

Fairbanks, 864; Burkett, 110; Webster, 2; Burton, 2; Johnson, 1; Borah, 8; Absent 4.

Chairman Harding sent the following telegram to the justice.

"Hon. Charles E. Hughes, Washington.

"With deliberation and enthusiasm under circumstances which could not have been more complimentary and with a unanimity never excelled in previous conventions you have been nominated by the Republicans of the nation as our candidate for the presidency of the United States.

"Voicing the sentiments of the convention over which I have presided through the courtesy of my fellow delegates I congratulate you on the outcome of this convention."

Selection of Justice Hughes came after Roosevelt had made an eleven-hour attempt to swing a compromise candidate for both his own Bull Moose party and the G. O. P. in the person of Senator Henry C. Lodge of Massachusetts. It was perfectly apparent that the Republican delegates proposed to run their own steam roller over the colonel's aspiration this year.

Selection of the "silent man" of present day American politics was celebrated by an uproar and parade of the state standards. There was a brief but roof raising bit of applause and then everybody stood up and talked and handclapped their enthusiasm.

California with its state banner lead the parade of states through the hall.

Hughes' nomination on an early ballot was indicated as early as midnight when Senator Sherman with

ALL IS NOT WORK WITH DELEGATES AT CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICANS

Interesting Side Lights About Men and Women Who Had Lots of Fun at Chicago.

Only a Third as Many Colored Delegates This Year as There Were Four Years Ago.

A interesting feature of this Republican national convention is the scarcity of color in the scheme of delegates.

Negro delegates have been seen on every hand at former Republican national conventions for years, but this trip they are few and far between. Such negroes as showed up were greeted with a handshake when they dropped in at the headquarters of the various candidates. They have been received with courtesy, told to come again whenever they felt like it and then have been passed along.

Gone are the days when the negro delegates were entertained lavishly, only to be taken in hand by representatives of each presidential candidate on a raise ante.

Four years ago, at this same Chicago, the negro delegates from southern states enjoyed the best the town could afford, and either the Taft or the Roosevelt headquarters — sometimes both — paid the expenses.

Only about twenty-five negro delegates in all have been elected to this convention — one-third the number in 1912.

This largely is because of the new basis of representation agreed upon by the Republican national committee for this convention, which reduced the allotment to the southern states.

In order to modify the feeling of the negroes, a few were squeezed into the delegations from northern states, but these men are decidedly of a different type from the southern beauty delegate. A sample is found in the New York delegation, where Charles W. Anderson of Manhattan, former collector of internal revenue, is an alternate at large.

Few Pickpockets.

Convention delegates or visitors from rural sections going to Chicago with forebodings of pickpockets and warnings against flimflambers have been treated to surprise this year. Few cases of pocket picking have been found as yet, but there have been many startling discoveries of pocket stuffing. It was amusing to see several ardent Roosevelt men reach down into their pockets for coin and draw out in amazement handfuls of small blue tickets labeled, "Put on your overcoat and hustle for Hughes." The justice of the supreme court having no official boomer, it was impossible to find out who put the cards into the coats.

Pepper Invented "Days Off."

Charles M. Pepper of the Root contingent is a newspaper immortal. Also he is a tradition and a landmark. He wears the laurel wreath of the gods of gossip, and there is a niche waiting for him in the heavenly gallery of journalistic fame.

Charles M. is the man who invented "days off" for morning newspaper men. Shall be given three rousing ones and a tiger?

When Charles M. was a Chicago Tribune man thirty-three years ago it was the custom for all editorial employees to work seven days a week. But Charles M. had read somewhere, Paged Villa.

There was one mystery unsolved. A hotel page, brimful of good faith, swung solemnly through the crowded lobby and corridors of the congress for fifteen minutes, calling in ear splitting yell, "General Pancho Villa!" After wrestling valiantly during that time with the problem that has given so much pause to the United States army, the boy returned amid grinning crowds and reported to the desk that he couldn't find the general.

Gardner's Comment.

Representative A. P. Gardner of Massachusetts, the original preparedness advocate in congress, who ran as a Roosevelt delegate in his state primaries and was defeated after Mr. Roosevelt announced that he did not endorse Mr. Gardner's candidacy, arrived in Chicago in jovial mood to work in behalf of the Roosevelt movement. Rumor says that he came after a conference with Mr. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay and at Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion.

"How is it going?" Mr. Gardner was asked.

"The whole city is for Roosevelt except the hotels in which the delegates are," he laughingly responded.

"Do you mean the hotels or the delegations are the exception?"

"You'll have to figure that out yourself. I am not going to say much just now after my experience in muddling things up in Massachusetts."

Owned Indiana's Vote.

W. H. Miller is of, for and from Ohio. As far as he is concerned Indiana is a barren wilderness somewhere off in the Rocky mountains. Lake Erie marks the jumping off place into the Arctic ocean, and Pennsylvania represents a negligible district on the east. He regards Cincinnati as the last thing on the south of anywhere.

He mopped his brow and dubiously trod the tiles in the Congress lobby. A Nebraska farmer was talking with a delegate from Indiana.

"There," said the Indiana person pointing, "is W. H. Miller. He owns all the votes in Ohio."

"The dickens you say," observed the farmer, taking Miller in with a comprehensive optical survey. "I'd like to meet him."

"Come on," invited the Indianian. "He's like I tell you—owns all the votes in Ohio."

"Votes!" exclaimed the Nebraskan. "Never mind interduchin' me. I thought you said 'oats.'"

You Don't Have To

WHY should I accept this idea of modern Advertising?" says the man of little ambition and practically no progress.

You don't have to, brother. Nobody will ever force it upon you. It will never be a matter of great concern to anybody else. You are the only one who will suffer if you don't.

You might just as well say, why should I use electricity instead of candle light; why should I use the telephone or the telegraph, instead of sending a postal card, and why should you do one thousand and one of the other modern, up-to-date things instead of depending upon the old antiquated customs which were good enough in the days of your forefathers.

Advertising having been developed into the science it now has, becomes the most modern method of developing business efficiency. It is the power adopted by the most enterprising men of the nation. It is reasonably sure because it is scientific; it is economic because used by such a large force of merchants that it has become the popular educator.

It is quite likely you can still continue in business without it, but, believe me, if this is possible, then it is equally positive that you have something which might be very greatly increased by the proper use of this modern scientific business developer.

If you want to get ahead and reach the power that is easily within your scope, then consider what advertising can be relied upon to do. If you are satisfied to be as you are, you don't have to accept or apply the principles of advertising to your business.—Business Chat.

referred to the fact they were convention delegates.

Political scouts working for the presidential boom of Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts overheard the conversation and butted into the game. On their invitation the delegates went upstairs to the Weeks headquarters and were entertained and fussed over by Senator Weeks and his colleagues.

"I surely would like to have you gentlemen vote for me in the Republican national convention," suggested Senator Weeks after the delegates had been treated to the fat of the land.

"We'd like to, senator," said one of the delegates, "but the fact is we are here to sit in the Progressive national convention instead."

After Weeks recovered he told his scouts to be sure they were snagging Republicans or else to head for home.

McAlester, Okla.—"Love laughs at prison bars" is an old saying that was given practical demonstration at the Oklahoma state penitentiary. Etta Martin, a pretty young Spanish girl from St. Louis, became the bride of John Cieloha, Bohemian, who is serving a life sentence for murder.

It is the first sentence on record where a life term convict was permitted to marry and the third case of marriage in which an Oklahoma prisoner appeared as principal.

The first case was that of a trusty, who married before marriage license clerk or officiating minister knew of his record. In the other case the ceremony took place in the warden's office, but the bridegroom held a parole on one hand.

The young bride of John Cieloha expects to bring about the release of her husband through pardon or parole.

"If he hadn't escaped from the penitentiary he would have stood a much better chance," suggested a newspaper man in talking with the newlyweds shortly after their marriage.

"But if he hadn't escaped I wouldn't have found him," was the quick reply of the young wife.

The persistence with which she pursued her demand for marriage with a convict leads one to believe that she'll keep her word as to freeing him.

Cieloha was charged with being accessory to the murder of David Conway, an aged bridge keeper on the Midland Valley railroad, near Muskegee, seven years ago. Conway was found beaten to death, presumably by robbers.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES.

The Republican national convention made a wise choice in Charles Evans Hughes, of New York, as the Republican presidential nominee. The action of the convention will be enthusiastically endorsed by Republicans throughout the country. His popularity with the delegates, representing the Republican party of the United States, was shown on the first ballot. He maintained his big lead on the second and was overwhelmingly named on the last.

Justice Hughes has been closely associated with the vital domestic and international problems of this country for several years and it is this experience that so admirably equips him for the presidency of the greatest nation on the face of the globe. He has always represented the people. His first experience in public life was in New York when he was chosen for special investigation work. His services in this connection commanded the attention of the people who have honored him from time to time during his active career with the most important offices under their control. He has been tried and found worthy and that is why the call for him to lead the Republicans in the next campaign was so universal.

Justice Hughes is a man of quiet and determined action. This characteristic was so plainly shown during the last few days. With the republican hosts calling him as their standard bearer he remained silent. In his recent address he refrained from making a single utterance that might be termed political. He wanted his nomination to come from the people without spectacular play that might influence at a time when calm, deliberative judgment was so essential.

Justice Hughes is preeminently fitted for the presidency. Not a fault can be found in his private life. His early training was in a home of Christian influence. His father was a Baptist minister and the justice himself has been prominent in the service of his faith. His record on the supreme bench of the United States is above criticism. He has a splendid knowledge of international law and is recognized as one of the leading American statesmen and a diplomat without a peer.

Justice Hughes will lead the Republican party to victory. The people see in him the man who is needed. He is a representative of the truest type of Americanism. His administration will be an administration of righteous and just policies for the protection of the American people. He will represent the best interests of the people and will not be influenced by forces representing selfish interests.

The Republican national convention is to be congratulated upon the nomination of Justice Hughes. He is the man of the hour and the man of the age. He stands now and will stand for justice, home and abroad, honor and equality. With him as the standard bearer the Republican party is marching to victory.

BUILDING AT THE PARK.

The public, we believe, welcomes the announcement that the citizens' park committee has taken steps to erect a shelter house at a Shields Park. A structure of this kind has long been needed—especially so since the recent successful efforts to popularize the beautiful grounds. A suitable building there will insure visitors and picnic parties that they will be sheltered from rains which frequently come up suddenly during the summer months. The absence of such a building has been a drawback to the park in the past.

The park committee proposes to spend $2,500, or probably more, in constructing this building. The city council does not have the ready money for this purpose and intends to issue bonds for the amount. In view of the amount of the money to be expended the majority of the citizens seem to be of the opinion that the building should be more than a shelter house. They favor a structure that could be used as a coliseum. The committee having charge of the plans for the building have not definitely decided about the appearance or the general plan but of course they, too, are interested in securing the best building that will serve the largest number of purposes.

President Wilson wants to relieve the delegates to the St. Louis convention of all the work he can. He has written the platform, named the chairman of the convention and we presume he is now working out the decorating scheme for the hall and arranging other details so all the delegates will have to do is to formally nominate him and cheer.

Come, cheer up! Indications are that the Democratic convention will not be so nerve wrecking. Since the enthusiasm will be trained it will be under better control and can be released when we're looking for it.

We are informed that new designs are to appear on dimes, quarters and half-dollars. The average person isn't as deeply interested in the figure on the coin as the figure which it represents.

Rapid Rise of Hughes
in Service of Public

By United Press.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES. Hughes is the man who introduced the whisker into present day politics. The former governor of New York and present justice of the Supreme Court is the cartoonist's delight. Plenty of foliage on any sort of a face indicates Hughes in cartoons. The Hughes whiskers used to be six shades darker in their burnt orange color than the justly famed soup strainers sported by Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois. Hughes is also famous for his silence.

When the former governor was elevated to the Supreme Bench New York lost one of its best political fighters in Republican ranks since the days of Roscoe Conklin. He came by his aggressive ability naturally, being of Welsh descent. New York knew him as a man who would just as soon serap as sing, and he used to do a good deal of the latter.

Born in Glenn Falls, New York, on April 11, 1862, his father was Rev. David Charles Hughes, direct descendant of a noted Welsh family, while his mother, before her marriage, was Miss Catherine Connally.

The future justice studied at the public school in Oswego while his father was preaching there, and later in Newark, N. J., and in New York City, where he was pupil in "Old 33", one of the Metropolis' noted grammar schools. His liking for oratory was demonstrated early.

When only thirteen he delivered the salutatory address for his class on graduation. His education was completed at Madison, now Colgate University, and at Brown University, at both of which institutions he was popular with fellow students, even though he was very much of a student. After graduation Hughes essayed school-mastering, teaching Greek and Mathematics in Delaware Academy, Delphi, N. Y. He also studied law at odd moments in the office of Judge Gleason. In 1882 he entered Columbia Law School, New York, and further studied Blackstone in the office of General Stewart L. Woodford, then U. S. District Attorney. He was admitted to the bar in 1884 and was just ordinarily successful until 1891, when, his health threatened by overwork, he became professor of law at Cornell.

In 1893 he went back to practicing and soon became one of the universally recognized authorities here on corporation law. His first public service work was in 1905 as special counsel for the Legislative Commission investigating New York City's gas and electric companies. Hughes' work in this investigation was of so brilliant a character that when there was a general demand that same year for a legislative investigation of the Equitable Insurance scandal, State Senator W. W. Armstrong, appointed head of such a probing body, called on Hughes, then on a vacation in Switzerland, to return and act as special counsel.

The disclosures of that investigation are historic. They were responsible in the main for Hughes later being elected twice as governor of New York. In the middle of the investigation he flatly refused a mayoralty nomination.

From the outset of his career as governor, Hughes was in trouble with Republican party leaders. He developed an aloofness from them, and complete independence of thought and action that finally culminated in an open break between him and William Barnes, Jr.

New Yorkers still remember a speech by Hughes before the Albany newspaper correspondents as one of the most artistic, vitriolic "dressing ies; insurance reform and anti-race track legislation.

Because of his reform record and his progressivism of thought, Hughes has been mentioned as an "amalgamation" candidate, who would unite both the Republicans and Progressives. He isn't popular with the "old guard" because of his habits of almost "insolent independence" as one leader has expressed it, but all Republicans admit his strength with the voters.

A coat of good paint is like a suit of clothes, the quality is shown in the goods. It is just as easy to pick out a well dressed house as a well dressed person. You can't keep up the appearance of your property with cheap inferior paint.

Paint is applied for two purposes, to beautify and to protect property. Good paint will accomplish both purposes. It is not only decorative but it protects against decay and depreciation.

Keeping your house well painted is the best method of maintaining the market value of your property. Scores of your neighbors and friends are doing this now with

REFUGEES CROWD FRENCH CITIES

Government Now Caring For Nearly a Million Persons.

LIVE ON 25 CENTS A DAY.

Included Among These Are 143,000 Belgians and 11,000 Servians—Others Come From Fortified French Cities Near Battle Lines—Some Earn Own Living.

Nearly a million people, the exact figures being 928,000, who have been driven from their homes are scattered throughout France and draw allowances from the government, half the number being under sixteen years of age. The greatest number, 762,000, are French, refugees from the invaded departments, from the fortified towns which could no longer keep "useless mouths" and from the danger zone of the front. The Belgians number 143,000; Alsace and Lorraine have sent 12,000 and Servia 11,000.

In addition to these refugees who need state aid, there are about 120,000 who have means of their own, but these decrease as their means become exhausted.

The first class of refugees to be aided was the "useless mouths" from fortresses like Maubeuge, Verdun, Toul, Epinal and Belfort. Before the war had lasted a fortnight 25,000 of these had to be provided with homes elsewhere.

After the battle of Charleroi and the rapid outrush of the Germans 115,000 Belgians and French had to be sent to the rear, and when Paris was threatened with an attack early in September 15,000 who had built homes within the zone of the capital's fortifications had to be moved.

Live With Private Families.

Refugees were first installed in empty buildings, schoolhouses, etc., but it was soon found that some regular principle must be adopted, and every family not touched by the war was called upon to receive a refugee family, the state paying the expenses.

The battle of the Marne slackened the inflow of refugees for a time, but when operations moved to the north the number became so great that they had to be moved not only by train, but by ships, which carried them from Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne to La Pallice, whence they were distributed among the southwest departments. Many families who had been taken to Germany from the invaded districts were returned via Switzerland and had to be provided for.

The money aid given to refugees has been fixed at the same rate as the allowance made to the wives and families of mobilized soldiers, 25 cents a day for each adult and 10 cents for each child under sixteen.

When refugees had settled down and could earn something by their labor a difficult question had to be solved. It would manifestly be unfair to suppress the grant of a poor woman who could only earn, say, 25 cents a day, and yet those who could earn a living wage (and it must be remembered that the war had caused a great demand for labor) could not expect to receive a grant in addition. The question was left to the prefect of the department to decide with the aid of three members of a committee formed to distribute aid in kind the gifts of private individuals, benevolent societies, etc. No hard and fast rules were laid down, but any refugee who without valid excuse refused any offer of work which was properly paid and suited his or her capacities had the allowance suppressed.

Many refugees have found well paid work in munition factories and have thus been able to maintain themselves and co-operate directly toward their return to their old homes.

MEXICAN OUTBURSTS AGAINST U. S. GROW

Officials at Washington Are Uneasy.

Washington, June 10.—Anti-American demonstrations in northern Mexico continue, according to official advices, particularly in the state of Chihuahua, San Luis Potosi and Nuevo Leon, and, although the manifestations thus far have been confined mostly to speech making, consular agents have reported that the temper of the people appears such that any eventuality might be possible.

Americans are leaving for the border in steadily increasing numbers. Under previous instructions, state department agents in Mexico are giving every possible aid. In addition border agents have been instructed to urge those seeking to return to Mexico to stay on the American side of the border for the present.

Officials here showed considerable uneasiness over the situation. While no overt act is anticipated in any region under the well-established control of Carranza troops, there appear to be areas where de facto government's hold over the people is not strong. Some reports said the demonstrations were in part incited by agitators pretending to be Carranza adherents.

Army officials have no fears for the safety of the American expedition. It is so closely concentrated as to be fully able to defend itself in any emergency and also to lend efficient protection to a wide stretch of the border.

The spread of the anti-American agitation may delay the sending of a reply to General Carranza's note demanding recall of the American troops.

Creation of an international commission to discuss all difficulties is known to have been suggested under existing treaties and it is understood the proposal still is before President Wilson.

TERRE HAUTE GAS RATE CUT

Indiana Public Service Board Acts In Rate Case.

Indianapolis, June 10.—The public service commission, in a decision just announced, orders a reduction in the gas rates for the city of Terre Haute, fixed a valuation of $770,000 for the Citizens Gas and Fuel company of that city, and established 85 cents for 1,000 cubic feet as the maximum rate to be charged consumers, a reduction of 15 cents on each 1,000 cubic feet.

In its decision the commission says that the public is "entitled to as low a rate for gas as is consistent with the rights of the company to a reasonable return on its investment." The commission finds that the present rates for gas charged by the Terre Haute company are "unreasonable and unjust."

SAFETY DEVICES ORDERED

Railroads Ordered by Public Service Board to Act at Marion, Ind.

Indianapolis, June 10.—The public service commission ordered the Big Four, Clover Leaf and Pan Handle railway companies to construct and install and operate a modern interlocking plant and devices at the intersection of the railroads between Railroad avenue and Fifteenth street in Marion. The plant must be operating before Jan. 1, 1917. The cost will be about $30,000. The companies must file blue prints before July 1.

This case arose out of a petition presented by Mayor James O. Batchelder who demanded the installation of the interlocking plant both as a safety measure and to expedite the passing of trains over street crossings. Several hearings were held before the commission in which it was shown the railroad traffic at these points was great and the danger accordingly was great.

HUGHES LED ON 2 BALLOTS

First Time Since 1888 That a Republican National Convention Failed to Nominate on First Ballot—Fairbanks Nominated by Will R. Wood.

Chicago, June 10.—The creation of a so-called joint peace committee by the Republican and Progressive conventions did not result in any change of the program for the Republican convention, which proceeded according to schedule.

Following two ballots for president came a motion to adjourn, which carried by a vote of 694½ to 286½.

Justice Hughes led on the first two ballots taken by the Republican convention in the effort to select a presidential nominee. He polled 328½ votes on the second ballot, against 253½ on the first, but that still left him 164½ votes short of the necessary total to gain the nomination, 493 being required to nominate. This is the first time since 1888 that a Republican national convention has failed to nominate on the first ballot.

The leader on the second ballot was Root, with 98½ votes, while on the first ballot this position was held by Weeks, with 205. On the first ballot Root had stood in third place with 103.

Roosevelt gained fifteen votes on the second ballot, polling 80, as against his 65 on the first. Fairbanks also picked up on the second round. He had polled 74 votes on the first ballot, and on the second he polled 88½.

On the second ballot Ford, Taft and Borah dropped out, and Wood, Harding and Wanamaker entered.

According to the forecast a motion to adjourn after one or two ballots would result in a test of strength between the Hughes crowd and the allies. The managers of the Hughes candidacy were said to be anxious to have the convention sit until a nomination was made. If they did not oppose the motion to adjourn it was argued it would be because they were aware that they were far short of enough votes to control the situation.

The two conventions may finally come together on one candidate. The outlook for this was regarded as decidedly hopeful by many, but if they do reach a common ground it will not be the result of any action taken by the so-called committee. A recommendation by this committee probably would carry a great deal of weight with the Progressive convention, one may rest assured, but is not going to permit any five men to instruct it as to its duties.

Nominations Begin.

The first nomination was that of Chief Justice Hughes. Whitman made the nominating speech, when, as the roll of states was called, Alabama and Alaska passed and Arizona yielded to New York. Following the conclusion of the speech there was a twenty-minute demonstration.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler followed Whitman and offered the name of Elihu Root as a candidate and another demonstration resulted.

Dr. Butler was followed by Governor Frank B. Willis of Ohio who placed the name of Theodore Burton in nomination.

Governor Willis spoke for nearly forty minutes in presenting the name of Theodore E. Burton of Ohio. The speeches nominating T. Coleman DuPont of Delaware and John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, which completed the list before Fairbank's name was reached, were comparatively short.

What the speech of Mr. Wood, who nominated Charles W. Fairbanks lacked in length it made up in effectiveness for the address was listened to with close attention. He gave a brief recital of Mr. Fairbanks's career and of the trust which so many of the nation's public men have placed in him.

Following the presentation of Fairbanks there was a thirty-five minute demonstration, which was greater than that received by any other candidate. Banners bearing Fairbanks's name were carried through the Coliseum to the deafening cheers of thousands of men and women, flags were unfurled and carried through the big structure by persons who seemed to come from the mysterious recesses of the building, and up in the loft a band played "On the Banks of the Wabash" while delegates and the galleries cheered until they were hoarse.

Former Representative M. E. Kendall nominated Senator A. B. Cummins of Iowa. Another demonstration similar to the others followed. Iowa, South Dakota, Montana, Alaska and Porto Rican delegates formed in line and paraded about the aisles, shouting themselves hoarse.

When the roll was called down to New Mexico, Senator Fall took the platform to nominate Colonel Roosevelt. The senator's references to Roosevelt seemed to draw more applause from the galleries than from the floor. The racket began when he concluded, as Roosevelt workers distributed flags and "T. R." pennants in the galleries. The demonstration was practically confined to the galleries, all but a few delegates remaining in their seats.

While the Hughes people stood out against adjournment, they contended that the vote could not be regarded as a real test inasmuch as the delegates had been in session for many hours and were insistent on postponing further balloting.

After the convention adjourned the allies held many conferences, seeking to get together on a common candidate. The Hughes people, while expressing confidence, were plainly worried. Governor Whitman, who has managed the Hughes boom, was particularly fearful that the adjournment would give an opportunity for the allies to make deals. Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, and Senator Sherman of Illinois were being talked of as possibilities on whom the allies might try to unite.

The convention was slow in getting to work, the delegates and spectators being late.

After fifty-six hours of continuous rain there was hope that the clouds had emptied themselves. The sky was still a menacing gray, however, and the best the weather man would promise was "unsettled with probable showers." Umbrellas were furled for the first time since the convention began and expressions of relief were general among the delegates and visitors.

MOOSERS WAITED ON REPUBLICANS

Hopeful That Unity of Parties May Result.

BORAH STIRS CONVENTION

Prohibition Plank Voted Down—Progressives Well Pleased With Results of Conferences With the Republicans So Far as They Have Gone.

Chicago, June 10.—Progressives marked time in their convention while the Republicans proceeded with their attempt to nominate a candidate.

Bearing the outward semblances of calm deliberation, except for the recurrent flashes of "We Want Teddy," the third party men inwardly were keyed to an explosive pitch, and all that kept them from naming their idol and adjourning was the slender hope that out of the inter-party conferences might come some solution that will unite the two parties.

Mr. Perkins conferred with the chairman of all state delegations this morning. The purpose of the conference, it is intimated was to canvass the possibilities of a compromise candidate for the two parties.

The big things in the Progressive convention were the speech of Senator Borah of Idaho and the rejection of a prohibition plank. Just how much significance is to be attached to Senator Borah's speech is a matter of individual opinion.

Kansas broached the prohibition question. The debate was vigorous.

The debate in the first meeting of the Indiana delegation, before the convention assembled, was indicative of a country-wide sentiment among Progressives that prohibition sooner or later must be met as a national political issue.

The prohibition plank was tabled by a vote of 623 2/5 to 82 1/5, Indiana's delegation voted 16½ for tabling and one-half vote against tabling.

Edward R. Lewis of Indianapolis obtained one of the important amendments of which was the chief business of the convention. Mr. Lewis held the proxy of W. C. Bobbs of Indianapolis. The Lewis amendment includes a reference to the submarine question in the plank on the administration's course on Mexico.

The Progressives were well pleased with the announcement of their conference committee that the Republican conferees had presented no candidate on their side in opposition to Roosevelt, and had not combated the argument of the Progressive conferees that Roosevelt was the most available man.

Governor Hiram Johnson of California, discussing the report of the conferees, phrased the views of third party men when he said: "Progressives present the issues in this campaign and they offer the man."

REPUDIATES INTERVIEW

Gerard Declares He Did Not Make Peace Statements.

Berlin (by wireless to Sayville), June 10.—The American ambassador, James W. Gerard, has repudiated an interview recently attributed to him on the subject of President Wilson's peace efforts, the Overseas News agency says.

The ambassador also is quoted as asserting that Count Friedrich von Westarp, Conservative leader in the reichstag, desired Mr. Gerard to have a spurious interview published some time ago, but that the ambassador declined.

According to a statement given out by the news agency, a manuscript containing a copy of the spurious interview was submitted to Mr. Gerard with the idea that it was to be published in the National Zeitung, but the ambassador refused to approve it.

Germans Launch Huge Drive on Entire Front East of the Meuse—French Officers Arrive in London For War Council.

London, June 10.—Five days of furious offensive by huge Russian forces under General Brusiloff have crumpled up their opponents' line from the Kovel-Sarny railway line to Bukowina, and the forces of the central powers have been driven back an average of fifteen miles, according to news from Petrograd.

The Russian statement declares that in the Lutsk sector the Czar's troops have completely broken through, turning the left flank of the Austrian armies and the right flank of the Germans.

A dispatch received from Rome asserted that the Russian ambassador there had received information that the Austrian front had been broken for a distance of ninety-four miles and to a depth of thirty-seven miles.

The Russian advance, according to this report, now threatens to envelop the entire Austrian army in the region affected, the Austrians finding themselves attacked from the east and from the north. The report adds that the Russians have captured 185 additional officers and 13,714 additional men.

In some places the Russian barrier fire cut off large Austrian units, which surrendered. This accounts for the large number of prisoners officially reported captured.

The big Russian drive, however, is having little effect on the situation on the west front, for the Germans are continuing to hammer at the French defenses in the Verdun region, and the Paris statement admits that further gains have been made by the enemy of the east side of the Meuse, where the Teutonic forces have launched an offensive movement along the entire front.

"No, monsieur."

His eyes were ugly.

You refuse? Mon Dieu! Do you think I play? I will have the kiss—or more."

Furious as the man was I felt no fear of him, merely an intense disgust that his hands should touch me, an indignation that he should offer me such insult. He must have read all this in my eyes, for he made but the one move, and I flung his hand aside as easily as though it had been that of a child. I was angry, so that

The two are already on the verge of quarrel. You must find some way of drawing the commissaire aside—not tonight, for there is plenty of time before us, and I am sure we are being watched now—and that will afford me opportunity."

"But why may I not speak him?"

"You!" I laughed. "He would be likely to talk with you. A sweet message you sent him in Quebec."

"I was drunk, and Cassion asked it of me."

"I thought as much; the coward makes you pull his chestnuts from the fire. Do you give me the pledge?"

"Ay! although 'tis not my way to play sweet, when I should enjoy to wring the fellow's neck. What was it La Barre said?"

"That just before he died my father's property was restored to him by the king, but the royal order was never recorded. It exists, but where I do not know, nor do I know as yet for what purpose it was concealed. My marriage to Cassion must have been an afterthought, for he is but a creature of La Barre's. It is through him the greater villains seek control; but, no doubt, he was a willing tool enough, and expects his share."

"Why not let me choke the truth out of him then? Bah! it would be easy."

"For two reasons," I said earnestly. "First I doubt if he knows the true conspiracy, or can lay hands on the king's restoration. Without that we have no proof of fraud. And second, coward though he may be, his very fear might yield him courage. No. Uncle Chevet, we must wait and learn these facts through other means than force. 'Tis back in Quebec, not in this wilderness, we will find the needed proofs. What I ask of you is, pretend to know nothing; do not permit Cassion to suspicion that I have confided in you. We must encourage him to talk by saying nothing which will put him on guard."

"You—you will try, as his wife, to win confession?" he asked finally, grasping vaguely the one thought occurring to him.

"No; there is a better way. I despise the man; I cannot bear that he touch me. More than that, if I read him aright, once I yield and confess myself his property, he will lose all interest in my possession. He is a lady killer; 'tis his boast. The man has never been in love with me; it was not love, but a desire to possess my fortune, which led to his proposal of marriage. Now I shall make him love me."

"We shall be alone in the wilderness for months to come. I will be the one woman; perchance the only white woman into whose face he will look until we return to Quebec. I am not vain, yet I am not altogether ill to look upon, nor shall I permit the hardships of this journey to affect my attractiveness. I shall fight him with his own weapons, and win. He will beg and threaten me, and I shall laugh. He will love me and I shall mock. There will be jealousy between him and D'Artigny, and to win my favor he will confess all that he knows. Tonight he sulks somewhere yonder, already beginning to doubt his power to control me."

"You have quarreled?"

"No—only that I asserted independence. He would have entered this tent as my husband, and I forbade his doing so. He stormed and threatened, but dare not venture further. He knows me now as other than a weak girl, but my next lesson must be a more severe one. 'Tis partly to prepare that I sent for you; I ask the loan of a pistol—the smaller one, to be concealed in my dress."

"You would kill the man?"

"Pooch! small danger of that. You may draw the charge if you will. For him to know that I possess the weapon will protect me. You do not grasp my plan?"

"He shook his head gloomily, as though it was all a deep puzzle to his mind, yet his great hand held forth the pistol, the short barrel of which gleamed wickedly in the fire glow as I thrust it out of sight."

drew and asked that his 58 delegates vote go to Hughes, Ohio next swing in line and then just before the convention convened, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and others joined the Hughes standard. Senator Weeks, the only "favorite son," actually on the ground here, formally withdrew shortly before the convention opened.

Indiana's thirty votes went for Hughes after Fairbanks was withdrawn in favor of the Justice of the supreme court. Other candidates who withdrew in Hughes' favor were Weeks, Sherman, Cummins and Du-point. The total votes on the third ballot were:

Hughes, 949½; Roosevelt, 18½; Weeks, 4; Lodge, 5; Dupont, 5; LaFollette, 3; Absent 1.

Prepared to nominate Justice Hughes on the first ballot, the Republican National convention began its last session today at 11:47.

Theodore Roosevelt's last minute proffer of Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts as his compromise candidate would not stop the Hughes tide. Judge W. McGrath, T. R.'s secretary was on the platform, bearer of the colonel's message. He conferred with leaders of the party.

Frank Hitchcock, volunteer manager of Hughes, was overwhelmed with congratulations when he appeared.

Chairman Harding who predicted a nomination on the first ballot delayed calling the convention to order to allow McGrath time to see the leaders. Soon after the convention opened Senator Weeks announced his withdrawal as a candidate in favor of Hughes. This decision was reached at daybreak after an all night session. Sherman had also gone to Hughes.

Dupont was withdrawn in favor of Hughes. Fairbanks, Root and Cummins all withdrew in favor of Hughes.

ANNA BELLE Plays Tennis

Dear Friends.--Last season Marjorie and I played tennis and now it's time for some more of those good times. If you've ever played I know you will enjoy hearing about it. We progressed very well last season so now we're not so "green" at the game as Brother Jack says. It's dandy exercise and every morning before the sun gets very warm we go out and have several games.

Now I must talk about SEWING SOCIETY work for a bit and I know you're very much interested in that. We are certainly making grand progress in this interesting work and we ought to be very happy indeed in knowing that we are making such a record in our efforts to make the poor children we know see a little more of the joys of life. If you should happen to be a friend who hasn't sent for a Certificate of Membership now is the time to do so. Just address me care this paper, enclose a two-cent stamp for postage and I'll be glad to send you one. Or, if you're an officer in your Society, will send as many as you wish for yourself and members. Lovingly,

Anna Belle
